OAUG News Release

Oracle Applications Users Group Presents Skills Marketplace Job Board

- Job-search tool connects employers with applications users -

ATLANTA, Feb. 27, 2006 – The Oracle Applications Users Group (OAUG), the world’s largest user knowledgebase for the family of Oracle® Applications users, announced the development of its Skills Marketplace, a job board specializing in connecting applications users seeking positions with potential employers.

Skills Marketplace is free to all qualified job seekers, both OAUG members and non-members, and provides an array of features designed to make the job-search process more efficient and effective by highlighting specific skills and needs.

In addition to a resume, each candidate’s online profile allows him or her to showcase special skills through the application’s questionnaires. This enables job seekers to classify themselves by application type and rank their skills in any of the Oracle E-Business Suite, PeopleSoft, JD Edwards and Oracle Retail product areas. Candidates may also apply to jobs directly through Skills Marketplace, save job searches and track job applications.

For an annual fee, employers can use the job board to post job descriptions and search for candidates based on product area expertise and predetermined levels of experience. Currently, OAUG member companies can post their first three job descriptions free of charge.

“The OAUG Skills Marketplace is a robust and flexible application that allows companies to set up their own job descriptions or modify one of the hundreds of available templates to assist in targeting the exact candidate they need,” said Patricia Dues, president OAUG. “The job board also offers individual applications users a practical, helpful tool for finding their next jobs.”

The Skills Marketplace can be accessed by visiting www.oaug.org/skillsmarketplace
